

ROBERT F.

KENNEDY

At their father's Florida estate in 1941 are Eunice, Robert, Edward and Jean Kennedy.

Part of the crowd welcoming Presidential hopeful Kennedy to Sacramento in 1968.

Robert Francis Kennedy announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States from the same location, the Caucus Room of the Old Senate Office Building, from which his late brother had done so eight years earlier.

His decision, based in part on the New Hampshire primary victory of Senator Eugene McCarthy, came several weeks before President Lyndon Johnson declined to run for a second full term.

For the man who ran the successful presidential campaign for his brother in 1960, political experience has come through hard work.

In 1944, he left his studies to enlist as a Naval seaman. Following the war, he returned to Harvard to receive a B.A. in 1948.

In 1951, following his LL.B from the University of Virginia Law School, Robert moved to Washington, D.C., to begin work in the Department of Justice. Nine years later, he was appointed Attorney General of the United States.

During those nine years, he helped run his brother's successful 1952 campaign for the U.S. Senate, then became an assistant counsel to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigation.

Six months later he left, returning in February, 1954, as chief counsel for the Democratic minority. Under new chairman John L. McClellan in 1955, he became chief counsel.

Following the failure of his brother John to obtain the vice-presidential nomination in 1956, Robert became chief counsel of the Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field in 1957.

Then came 1960, his brother's successful presidential bid and his appointment as Attorney General. The assassination in 1963 led to the end of this career.

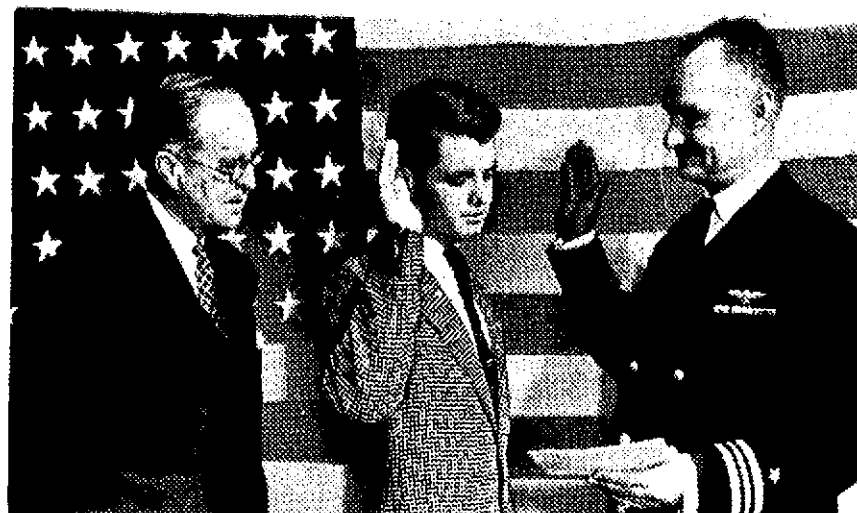

For Robert, however, born the seventh of nine children to multimillionaire Joseph Kennedy and wife Rose on November 20, 1925, at Brookline, Mass., the call to political activity was strong.

Seeking the New York State senate seat in 1964, he defeated incumbent Kenneth Keating by some 800,000 votes, making the first time in history three brothers have been elected to the United States Senate.

With other aspirants to "the loneliest job in the world," Robert F. Kennedy speaks out on the issues which involve, and engage, the country he seeks to lead.

Aloft the 13,900-foot Mount Kennedy in Canada, with the family flag flying beside national flags of both nations.

As Joseph Kennedy, Ambassador to England, looks on, Robert is sworn in as a Naval Aviation Cadet in 1943 at Boston.

With his new bride in 1950.

With Jacqueline Kennedy after her return from Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, while his brother's casket is placed into an ambulance.

The Kennedys and nine of their ten children.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US! this newspaper.

THEY WANT TO HELP

Dear Helen: Our Sodality group at school wants to do something for the children in Vietnam. We read about the girl who collected money for an orphanage over there, and wonder if you have any other addresses, so that we, and other people in the United States can help those little kids who have so little. -WANTING TO HELP

Dear WTH: Here's a letter, aimed right at you:

Dear Helen: I just wondered if you could give a few lines to us GIs in Vietnam: Joe Popietowski and I have a project going here in the Pleiku area. We're asking friends back home to send any kind of children's clothing they don't need - baby clothes, things for young children; and they can use soap and towels too. These kids have so little, sometimes not even a home. We're trying to let the Vietnamese know that Americans DO care and want to help.

If any of your readers have extra clothes, in good condition, could you send them to: CHILDREN OF THE PLEIKU AREA, in care of Mikel McCafferty, Sp-4, RA18991485, 4th Adm. Co., 4th Inf. Div. APO San Francisco, 96262.

Thank you!-JOE AND MIKE

Dear Helen: My parents gave me a choice between a gift of $2,000 to use for a downpayment on a house; or a big fancy wedding. I chose the $2,000 gift, and my fiance thinks the same as I do - why waste all that money on a big wedding which, if it's like most of them, will cause fights,

Mrs. Carlton Roberts, left, County Extension Homemakers Housing Leader, and Mrs. Jimmy Griffin, County Extension Homemakers Program Chairman, look at housing study aids available to help Extension Homemakers members. This educational program encourages more sufficient, convenient and beautiful housing.

Extension homemakers study how to analyze their needs, plan furnishings to meet these needs and select the best for prices they can afford. They also extend the housing dollar by making use of resources at hand. Extension homemakers recognize the influence of beauty in the home and its importance in developing well-rounded personalities.

But I find that my decision is also causing fights and discord. Our relatives have their noses out of joint because they can't be invited to our tiny chapel ceremony. My girl-friends think I'm crazy. They say that, for the rest of my life, I'll regret not having a huge, lovely wedding.

A few even point out that a big wedding is expected of people in our income group -and if you don't have one, whispers start that "She had to get married."

Should we cave in? -GETTING PRESSURED

Dear G.P.: Heavens no! You've made a wise decision. Don't let the yakkers back you down. -H

Dear Helen: I read a lot about the sexual revolution, but it sure hasn't hit THIS college yet! These gals are arm chair liberals. They talk up a storm about the evils of the double standard, and the advantages of the philosophy that "anyone who wants to, should." But you invite 'em up to your apartment and it turns out "they don't want to." What good is all the talk, if there's no action? Aren't dimes every going to toss away the stupid maxims that Mama taught them? -EAGERLY WAITING

Dear E.W.: Not for the likes of YOU, chum.

You're too eager! -H

P.S. Maybe the gals you've met have been brought up on this maxim:

"Of all the skills a girl should know, The first is how to "NOT" a beau!"

KENNEDY

Part of the crowd welcoming Presidential hopeful Kennedy to Sacramento in 1968.

As Joseph Kennedy, Ambassador to England, looks on, Robert is sworn in as a Naval Aviation Cadet in 1943 at Boston.

With his new bride in 1950.

With Jacqueline Kennedy after her return from Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, while his brother's casket is placed into an ambulance.

Atop the 13,900-foot Mount Kennedy in Canada, with the family flag flying beside national flags of both nations.

The Kennedys and nine of their ten children.

Robert Francis Kennedy announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States from the same location, the Caucus Room of the Old Senate Office Building, from which his late brother had done so eight years earlier.

His decision, based in part on the New Hampshire primary victory of Senator Eugene McCarthy, came several weeks before President Lyndon Johnson declined to run for a second full term.

For the man who ran the successful presidential campaign for his brother in 1960, political experience has come through hard work.

In 1944, he left his studies to enlist as a Naval seaman. Following the war, he returned to Harvard to receive a B.A. in 1948.

In 1951, following his LL.B from the University of Virginia Law School, Robert moved to Washington, D.C., to begin work in the Department of Justice. Nine years later, he was appointed Attorney General of the United States.

During those nine years, he helped run his brother's successful 1952 campaign for the U.S. Senate, then became an assistant counsel to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigation.

Six months later he left, returning in February, 1954, as chief counsel for the Democratic minority. Under new chairman John L. McClellan in 1955, he became chief counsel.

Following the failure of his brother John to obtain the vice-presidential nomination in 1956, Robert became chief counsel of the Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field in 1957.

Then came 1960, his brother's successful presidential bid and his appointment as Attorney General. The assassination in 1963 led to the end of this career.

For Robert, however, born the seventh of nine children to multimillionaire Joseph Kennedy and wife Rose on November 20, 1925, at Brookline, Mass., the call to political activity was strong.

Seeking the New York State senate seat in 1964, he defeated incumbent Kenneth Keating by some 800,000 votes, making the first time in history three brothers have been elected to the United States Senate.

With other aspirants to "the loneliest job in the world," Robert F. Kennedy speaks out on the issues which involve, and engage, the country he seeks to lead.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

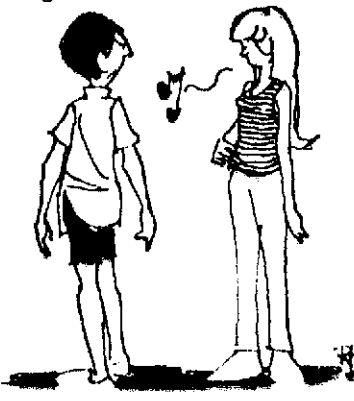

Sunglass Syndrome: American Optometric Association worries about rapidly increasing misuse of sunglasses. Not advisable to wear "for effect." Shades should not be worn at night and/or indoors. Continued "inside" usage impedes the eyes' ability to tolerate normal light. Major function of properly designed glasses is to reduce the intensity of ultraviolet and infrared rays. Both are invisible. The current boom in sunglass sales is more "fashion" than "function." The American Optometric Association has a lens and an ax to grind. Write to it at 7000 Chippewa St., St. Louis, Mo. 63119. The eyes you save may be your own! Its booklet about sunglasses is super.

RADIO RAH RAH: Over 47 million sets in United States (ten million in cars—90 per cent of all new cars are radio equipped). Twenty million sets are transistor-powered. Fascinating omission of vital detail: Radio Advertising Bureau neglects to break out ownership pattern of teens. The under 18 group are defined as a 25 million "youth market;" and their listening, not purchasing, patterns are briefly described. Small wonder teens feel that the "Seal of Disapproval" should be given to tunnelled research people who refuse even to relate the teen role to the total roll of the dollars toward the nation's cash registers.

BAKE LOOK FOR BOYS:

Signs of summer. Teen boys aren't abdicating the right to show skin. More boys than ever wearing shorts, sneakers and sport-shirts at the first signs of summer warmth. Not just for sport or country either. Big city teen boys appearing in growing numbers with their mini-pants. Look for this trend to really pop this summer!

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I am interested in having six or more teeth capped. I would appreciate your giving me the name of a dentist in the Pittsburgh area who specializes in this work.—Mrs. R. G.

ANSWER: Readers from all over the United States and Canada frequently write to ask for specific recommendations such as this, and obviously it's something I cannot provide.

But you are wise to seek the services of a dentist with special interest and knowledge in this type of dentistry, generally called oral rehabilitation. Multiple capping is a delicate and complicated work, and rarely is it an isolated dental procedure. Other teeth and, in fact, the entire dental mechanism are usually involved and must be considered in the treatment plan.

And you're in luck, too. You have excellent choices. Pittsburgh has a first-rate dental school (University of Pittsburgh Dental School), and there are many fine dental specialists practicing in the city and environs.

Perhaps your own dentist does oral rehabilitation. If not, ask him to recommend someone who does. Or you

We don't care how well or how poorly you play bridge.
You always will make many mistakes. But the better the player, the fewer the mistakes.

South's four spade contract would be arrived at in almost any game. Even if North failed to give an immediate raise, South would bid along strongly.

The defense would start with West playing ace, king and jack of clubs. South would ruff the third club and most declarers would draw trumps and lose the heart finesse. Later, these declarers would lose a diamond and say something about finesses always losing for them.

Today's South was a better player. At trick four he led a trump to dummy's jack. He ruffed dummy's last club, played one more trump to pull the one outstanding and led his eight of diamonds.
West played the jack. Dummy's ace won the trick. South led a diamond back to his king and West dropped his queen of diamonds under the king. West could see an end play developing and wanted to keep from being thrown in.
If South held the 10 of diamonds West would have lost a diamond trick but would still get his king of hearts.
Since East held the 10 of diamonds, when South played the third diamond East was able to gain the lead. East led a heart and West's king set the contract.

South's play was good from a technical standpoint, but expert South had not played the hand as well as he might have. He had drawn a blueprint of his plan of campaign and expert West had stayed out of the trap. Real technicians would have been for South to lead his king of diamonds as soon as he ruffed that third club.

West might still have guessed enough to drop a diamond honor, but we doubt if he would have been that alert.

might inquire at the dental school. Surely they would recommend a few specialists.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE:
"My daughter is four years old. When she was two she fell and broke her two front teeth.
The dentist removed the nerve and saved the teeth, but they became dark. When the time comes, will these dark teeth naturally make way for the permanent ones? Or will they have to be pulled?" Mrs. M.
C., Utica, N.Y.

ANSWER: Unless the permanent tooth buds under the broken baby teeth were damaged at the time of the accident, the permanent teeth should erupt normally.

If your child was slow getting her baby teeth she may also be late with her permanent ones. But, in any case, if a number of months after normal eruption date of six years has passed, you should see your dentist for advice.
Prolonged retention of baby teeth can cause difficulties with eruption of permanent ones.

X rays can be taken to visualize the position of the permanent teeth in the gums, but usually a clinical exam is sufficient to make an evaluation.

Soccer goalie lunges with grace, artistry—and futility; point for opponent.

Goal of U.S. Soccer: More Goals

By TOMMY THOMAS
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—American sports fans a year ago couldn't comprehend the difference in two professional soccer leagues, like which was the real thing and which was the "outlaw league."

This was especially true in cities that had two teams. Some of the confusion has been eliminated since the United Soccer Association and the National Professional Soccer League have merged to make the North American Soccer League the only game in town.

"The two things Americans appreciate," says NASL publicist Cliff Kachline, "are goals and attacks on goal with a great save being made. We're trying to stimulate

Sam Mele on Hitting

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

BOSTON—(NEA)—Sam Mele is gray-haired now, and the wrinkles in his rough-hewn face have been deepened from years in the sun and some worrisome seasons as manager of the Twins. At 45, though, he is not too old to feel the exhilaration of his rookie playing days when around Ted Williams.

Mele was deposited at Minnesota midway through last season. Currently, he is a scout for the Boston Red Sox and also works with young prospects in Florida.

"Do you know who does a helluva job with the kids?" he asked rhetorically. "Ted Williams. He's like a magnet. Give you an example. He was standing in front of a bleacher talking hitting with a kid. Soon a couple other young players drifted over and sat down and listened. Then a few more came over. Then more and more. Before you knew it, the 10 rows of bleachers were filled. Ted spoke to the kids for an hour and a half."

Mele was a rookie outfielder in the Red Sox camp in 1946, his first exposure to Williams. "For some reason," recalled Mele, "Ted took a liking to me when I was a rookie. I remember once I sat next to him on a bus for two hours. We were going from some place to Tampa. We just talked hitting. When I got off the bus I thought I was the best hitter in baseball."

"He still discusses it with me. This spring he asked how I would hit a low pitch. I said, 'Well, like a golf ball.' I demonstrated. I hit right-handed and I raised my left shoulder. He said, 'Don't you think it would make more sense to keep your shoulders level and take an even cut? That way you'd get a better stroke and not pop up nearly as much.'"

"Who am I to argue hitting with Ted Williams? I still learn from him."

Williams would study a pitcher from the dugout, from the on-deck circle, from the plate, like a scientist peering scoring this season since that's what fans here like. Teams will get six points for a win, three for a tie, plus one for each goal up to three. Thus, a club could rack up nine points in a single game.

Eddie Pearson, an enthusiastic Englishman who is the league's chief referee, believes that as Americans learn more about the game they will come to appreciate the league's chief referee, as well as the attack.

"The professional teams in the United States," he says, "scored more goals last season than anywhere else in the world. I remember an early season game in Baltimore where there were many fine defensive plays but you could have heard a pin drop. But by the time the championships came, the fans had learned into a microscope. He would scrutinize the pitcher's form, motion, what kind of stuff he had, interrogate previous batters about him. He is after the young players to do the same.

"He's always hollering at the guys on the on-deck circle especially," said Mele. "He also tells them not to be afraid to take a pitch. A lot of batters think that once a pitcher gets a strike on them, they're in a hole. I thought the same way. Williams says that's wrong. He tells them not to be afraid to take a pitch. He says you're not in a hole with one strike, nor with two strikes. When you have two strikes, choke up a bit. He did. He says you get better bat control and more of a chance to get a good piece of the ball."

Williams is known also for his brusqueness. It is part of his make-up as batting instructor, too. "Sometimes he's so gruff," said Mele, "that I'm embarrassed for the kids. 'You can do it, dammit,' he'll say. 'Just try.' But they respect and admire him and know he is gruff only because of his intensity."

"You know, he is the guy who made Carl Yastrzemski change from a spray hitter to a pull hitter in 1967. Carl went on to his best year. This spring, Carl was having troubles. I don't think he got one extra base hit in the exhibition season. He was on the phone several times to Williams."

Once Mele went to Williams for advice on outfielding.

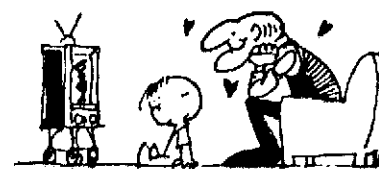

"He told me that wasn't his department," said Mele. "He pointed to Dom DiMaggio and said, 'See that fella.'"

By Richard Alden Knight

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Richard Alden Knight's SOLUNAR TABLES. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

quite a bit and they were as noisy as European crowds.

"Good technique in mid-field is somewhat like watching two football teams bang at each other at mid-field and then punt. There's a lot of skill involved but fans sometimes miss it. They like to see the ball down at the goal line."

Pearson noticed last season that when a player would "head" the ball or give it an overhead kick, very common tactics, the fans would cheer. But if a man "trapped" the ball on the ground and maneuvered it through several players to make a good pass, there was no response from the crowd. However, as the season progressed, the spectators began to appreciate such moves.

"Until the fan identifies with the individual!" Pearson adds.

"You can't expect to speed the growth of the sport. And that means producing American players. You can't tell me that in a country this size there is no talent for this game. I expect the United States to make a strong bid for the World Cup by 1974."

Professional soccer has doubtless filled somewhat of a sports void for several cities. "Washington hadn't won any kind of championship lately," says Kachline, "so when the Whips won their division title, the fans went wild. And the town that is currently way ahead of all others in the drive for season ticket sales is Kansas City."

Americans are beginning to realize that soccer championships are better than no championships at all.

Twins' 'Antique' Catcher Still Valuable Property

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Despite an inspired, detailed account of the period, there is no evidence that John Roseboro was on the Ark with Noah. There is, however, record of his antiquity extending back to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Roseboro is currently catching for the Minnesota Twins, and must now compete with ancient like Paul Bunyan for honors in the Northland.

To hear Roseboro tell it, it arm isn't the same. I used to throw B-Bs down to second base. No more." His arm described an arc in the air.

Roseboro's pro baseball career began with Sheboygan in 1952, some time after the Paleozoic Era. He came up to the majors with the Dodgers in 1957 and played behind Roy Campanella. After Campanella suffered a crippling auto injury that winter, Roseboro took over as regular catcher when the club moved to Los Angeles the following spring. He remained first string until is a wonder he can even bend his creaking back to buckle his shin-guards.

JOHN ROSEBORO

Knees feel like 'rusty hinges'

Roseboro sat bared to the waist on a stool in front of his locker and discussed his creeping dotage. It was before a game with the Yankees. He has a luminous expression of eternal serenity and, despite being 35 going on 70, he still has clarity of thought and remarkable recall for a backstop his age. His eyes are wide and brittle and not yet rheumy. There is, though, a suspicion of jowls and a comfortable bulge over his belt.

"When I come home from a game now," he said, without a quiver, "I get out of the car and my knees feel like rusty hinges. But that is not unique with me. All old catchers eventually feel the same way, from so much crouching over the years."

"There are other changes. Like I now have more natural padding when I sit. And my traded last fall with Ron Peranoski and Bob Miller for the Twins' Zoilo Versalles and Mudcat Grant.

The Twins lost the 1967 American League pennant on the final day of the season. The hitting of their catchers was nondescript, almost nonexistent. Roseboro, who batted .272 last season, is expected to provide batting punch and catching savvy to aid the Twins to a championship.

"He knows what winning is all about," said Twin manager Cal Ermer. "With the Dodgers, he caught some of the game's greatest pitchers. Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, and was on four pennant-winners."

Twin pitchers are already deferring to him, not solely out of respect for his years.

Dean Chance, who has been known to shake off his catchers, pitched a four-hit shutout

Not Born Free

NEW YORK—(NEA)—With rolled-up sleeves and a grim set to his chin, John Gordy of the National Football League Players Association confronted the stern faces of the 14 owners in a room in Chicago's Palmer House.

Professional football is concerned with complex issues that involve players and management. And one of them raised by Gordy was the option clause in the players' contract.

On May 1 of this year, 11 players in the National and American Football Leagues became, technically, free agents with rights to peddle their services to anyone. Some of them are highly desirable talents: Dave Parks, an all-pro split end for the San Francisco 49ers; Pat Fischer, an all-pro defensive back for the St. Louis Cardinals; Marlin McKeever, a rugged tight end for the Minnesota Vikings.

A 12th man would have joined the list because Bill Munson, a very negotiable quarterback, had already indicated to the Los Angeles Rams he wouldn't be coming back in '68 after playing out the option on his contract in '67. So just before the May 1 expiration of his ties to the Rams, they effected a trade with the Detroit Lions.

The price paid by the Lions for a man about to be legally unencumbered was appalling. They sent a veteran quarterback, Milt Plum; a veteran halfback, Tom Watkins; an excellent receiver and punter, Pat Studstill; AND Detroit's No. 1 choice in the draft for next fall.

A ukase issued by Commissioner Pete Rozelle several years ago, and later followed by the AFL, insisted that a club which lost a player because it couldn't come to terms for renewal of his contract would be "adequately compensated" by the club which had the temerity to sign him as a free agent.

If memory serves right, this all came about because the San Francisco 49ers were appalled when R. C. Owens, a receiver who popularized the Alley Oop catch, played out his option and the Baltimore Colts had the guts to pick him up without consulting his old team.

Now, supposing the club which lost the player doesn't feel it's being adequately compensated. What happens next? Then Rozelle arbitrarily suggests what the price will be.

So when Ron Kramer, then a 30-year-old tight end, lost his zest to play for the Green Bay Packers and picked Detroit as the place he'd like to be, the Lions had to yield up their No. 1 draft choice for 1966. That happened to be Jim Grabowski, one of the great-looking young fullbacks in football.

And when Jimmy Taylor, then a 32-year-old fullback, became disenchanted about playing for the same Packers and wanted to be closer to home, in New Orleans, the Saints had to come up with a No. 1 draft choice for 1968—Fred Carr, an All-American linebacker from Texas Western.

Rozelle, in his own time, has been known to overevaluate a player—he once gave up nine players for Ollie Matson when he was general manager at Los Angeles, and the Rams didn't have another winning season for eight years.

More dangerous is the fact that the "free agent" player doesn't always have the chance to pick his next destination. Pat Fischer is a fine defensive corner back. The New York Giants need a corner back. Pat would like to play in New York because he wants to be close to Wall Street, as a young stock broker. But unless the Giants are willing to pay the Cards what they think Pat's worth, it's highly unlikely he'll play in New York. The Washington Redskins, who also want Pat desperately, have already been discouraged by the St. Louis price tag.

So this business of playing out your option can be something of a myth. All it really means is that you're sure to be traded and the bargaining starts again with your next employer. Because, if Bill Munson had really been a free agent, he, and not the Los Angeles Rams, would have received the market value of Milt Plum, Tom Watkins, Pat Studstill and a No. 1 draft choice.

Which is why they have meetings on a nice spring day.

Attaway's Outdoor Notebook

NEW YORK, N.Y.—(NEA)—Youngsters seldom are introduced properly, if at all, to the primordial pursuits of shooting and fishing.

A number of companies in the outdoor recreation business have developed programs to fill this void, to the relief and delight of grateful parents. Clinics are offered in boating, fishing, hunting, camping, and all other phases of life in the out-of-doors.

One of the most ambitious shooting projects ever developed will be introduced early this summer by Winchester-Western. Using its nationwide network of public shooting centers as a base, on Opening Day against Washington. "I shook off Roseboro just once," he said. "And the batter got a hit. That taught me a lesson."

Once upon a time, Roseboro was considered the swiftest runner among catchers in baseball. A toothy smile spread across his face when it was mentioned. "That was awhile back, wasn't it?" he replied, without teeth clicking.

By now, Roseboro had managed to put on his uniform. He rose slowly and walked, on his own power, through the door.

In the second inning, he made a grand, diving stop of a low, outside pitch. In the fifth inning, he almost beat out an infield grounder. In the sixth he threw out Roy White, trying to steal second base, with a throw resembling a B-B rifle shot.

It goes to prove you can't believe everything you hear.

the company will offer a series of one-day seminars in proper gun handling.

These seminars will be aimed at fathers and sons, both receiving equal instruction. The cost is $15 per father-son team, which covers everything, including lunch.

The program begins with a lecture on guns, ammunition and gun safety, stressing the last.

The core of this lecture (and others throughout the day) is a specially made film-strip, part of a "Learn to Shoot" course.

After lunch, the teams are taken on a tour of skeet and trap fields and the games explained to them. Then they are shown a film on "How to Break Clay Targets," which explains the fundamentals of swing, lead and follow-through, essential to shooting moving targets.

This is followed by practice shooting, using tracer shot-shells to demonstrate mistakes graphically.

The shooters are then shown films on trap- and skeet-shooting techniques. After this, fathers and sons team up to shoot rounds of trap skeet.

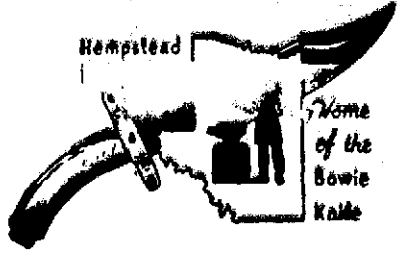

All the while, of course, instructors are at the shooters' sides to offer tips and to remind them of the cardinal rules of safety.

After a final discussion period, the kids are awarded shooting vests with special patches and a diploma. And pop is rewarded with the knowledge that he probably had just made one of the best investments of his life.

Technology's Progress
Although it did not advance rapidly, technology made substantial progress in the middle ages. The windmill, wheelbarrow, window glass, candle and paved road were invented in the 12th century; spectacles and the ship's rudder appeared in the 13th; the grandfather clock was devised in the 14th.

County Laundry Fair Is Planned Here

Homemakers look at labels on dresses and note some funny sounding names. Some 250 synthetic and natural fibers, blends, treatments, finishes, and hundreds of trademarks has brought about a great deal of confusion about textiles. Pictured above are Mrs. Bob Kellan and Diane, Mrs. Chris Petre and Kristen, members of the Hope Council of Garden Clubs and Mrs. Charles Carey and Jeffrey, of the Newcomers Club. These women organizations are interested in homemakers in this area learning more about the new developments in fabrics and encourage participation of their groups. How do you read a hangtag with meaning? What are fiber characteristics. How do fibers react when blended with another fiber? Is it better to buy a blend of 65 percent - 35 percent or 50 percent - 50 percent? What is the advantage of durable press and soil release finish? How should garments made from this fabric be laundered? These and other questions will be answered at the Laundry Fair Friday, May 17, at the Coliseum.

Homemakers note a complex assortment of laundry products available to use in caring for modern fabrics. Pictured above are Mrs. Jud Martindale and Mrs. Wayne Whitley of Paisley PTA and Mrs. Revis Edmonds and Mrs. Hollis Moses of the Garland PTA. These are parents interested in a better understanding of the types of products that have come from research and they encourage participation of their groups in this educational activity.

Which soap or detergent? Water Softener? Fabric Softener? Bleach? Disinfectant? In what conditions should they be used? What about washing garments in cold water? These are questions that homemakers who want to have white, bright and sparkling clean clothes are asking. Come to the Laundry Fair Friday, May 17 and find the answers.

New Labels for Birth Control Pills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today new labeling requirements for birth control pills because of new evidence it says indicates the pills may be hazardous to health. The FDA cited findings recently published by British researchers indicating those taking the pills increase their chances of death or disease due to blood clots by seven to 10 times. The revised labeling points out that the British studies cannot be applied directly to the United States or other countries because the incidence of blood-clot diseases may not be the same.

The new labeling will say that under adverse reactions, a statistically significant association has been demonstrated between the use of oral contraceptives and death or disease from blood clots which lodge in the brain or lungs.

Children Find Old Records

WHALEY, Mass. (AP) — Children playing in an attic have found town records missing 121 years. The records, dating to the incorporation of this western Massachusetts town in 1771, had been thought lost in 1847 when a fire destroyed the home of James M. Craft, a former selectman who was writing a town history. But former Selectman William Sanders said Monday his grandchildren found the records during the weekend in the attic of his house, which he bought from the Craft family estate some time ago.

Dekker Died Accidentally

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The coroner's office says actor Albert Dekker died accidentally, with a rope knotted around the neck. "This certainly is a strange death," Deputy Coroner Herbert McRoy said Wednesday. "But just because there was a rope around his neck does not mean that he committed suicide."

"It'll all come out in the wash" is good (if we're talking about dirt) and bad (if the subject is Color). How to accomplish one but not both?

With more and more of the household laundry being done all or in part by the homemaker these days, questions concerning it often arise. Power and automation have eliminated much of the drudgery and toil from home laundering, but the family wash still presents problems. Realizing this, the Hempstead County Family Living Committee has planned a Laundry Fair in cooperation with various educational organizations, local businessmen, and news media. It will be held at the Coliseum in Fair Park Friday, May 17.

The first part of the Laundry Fair will be a Come (as you are) and Go (when you please) Affair from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. in which exhibits will be displayed of equipment, washable fabrics, detergents, bleaches, starches, stain removers, and water conditioners.

The main event will take place in the afternoon from 1:30 until 3:30. At that time Elizabeth Ellis, Extension Home Management Specialist, will discuss detergents and equipment, and Cora Lee Guthridge, Clothing Specialist, will have information and will answer questions about fabrics.

Did you know there are now more than 250 synthetic fibers and natural fibers from which to choose when buying ready-made garments or piece goods? Add to these fibers the blends that are available and treatments and finishes possible, and the variety is almost endless. See why it is important to keep those little tags with laundry instructions which appear on almost all garments purchased? It's a good idea to "tag the tag" with a brief description of the garment before putting it away. Then, when you wonder which instructions go with which garment, the tag will show "blue striped shirt" or "black and white checked dress" or whatever the item is.

And don't forget. Men do the laundry, too. This fact is made apparent almost any time you go into a laundromat. So, fellows, if you have questions about the laundry, the experts will be glad to answer them at the Laundry Fair.

Unlike a certain TV commercial, Mr. McGregor will not be at the Fair to tell you which brand (of soap, detergent, bleach, etc.) to buy but there will be specialists to advise on the best types to purchase. You can save time, work, and money by the right use of laundry aids.

Since everyone is interested in saving those three things—time, work, and money—it seems as though the song we'll hear most on Friday, May 17 will be "Hi, Ho, Come to the Fair."

Czech Released Temporarily

PRAGUE (AP) — Former Czechoslovak Interior Minister Rudolf Barak, sentenced to 15 years imprisonment in 1962, has been temporarily released from jail pending an investigation of his case, the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported Wednesday.

Saigon is Still Under Attack

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces reported today killing 442 North Vietnamese troops below the demilitarized zone in renewed sharp fighting, described by some officers as another phase of the enemy's "peace talk" offensive.

In the enemy's seven-day-old attack on Saigon, the American command reported 50 Viet Cong soldiers killed in fighting in and around the capital. Some guerrillas still were holding out on the southern fringes despite heavy allied air attacks.

In the northern war zone, U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division troops rushed in to reinforce Marine units battered in heavy fighting around Dong Ha, where 1,500 enemy soldiers have been reported killed in the last two weeks.

The army reinforcements and Marines reported killing 442 enemy soldiers in the last 24 hours in five battles ranging from 5 to 11 miles below the demilitarized zone. American casualties were put at 24 killed and 54 wounded. If the U.S. count is correct, 18 enemy soldiers were killed for every American slain. Many of the enemy dead were claimed from American air strikes and artillery barrages.

U.S. bombers reportedly killed 56 enemy troops between Dong Ha and Gio Linh, another Marine stronghold to the north, after a company of infantrymen from the U.S. 199th Light Brigade came under enemy small arms fire and pulled back. One American was killed and two wounded.

$1.6 Million Contract to Conway Plant

CONWAY, Ark. (AP)—C. D. Ward, president of Ward Industries, Inc., of Conway, announced today the firm had received two contracts totaling $1,690,026 from the U.S. Army Automotive Command.

Ward said the contracts call for the manufacture of 246 vehicles. Ward said 165 of the vehicles would be 25-passenger buses for ambulance conversion and the remaining 81 vehicles would be 44-passenger school buses.

Ward said the ambulance conversion units would be produced at Austin, Tex., and the others at Conway. Production is scheduled to start in July and delivery is scheduled for early October.

10 Per Cent Dope Addicts

NEW YORK (AP) — There were 163,324 persons arrested in New York City last year, police statisticians reported Thursday, and 18,669 were admitted dope addicts. That is more than 10 per cent.

The most popular narcotic in use was heroin. About 85 per cent of the addicts used it, spending from $18 to $50 per day to support the habit. Marijuana was preferred by 8.3 per cent. Less than 1 per cent used LSD. Most of the admitted addicts were arrested for crimes against property, rather than against persons. Thefts from cars and trucks was the leading category of addict crime.

Washington Prepares for Violence

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Army troops in the Washington area reportedly will go on alert Saturday to be ready for any violence accompanying this weekend's arrival of the vanguard of the Poor Peoples' Campaign.

The Pentagon said the Army was taking certain "prudent actions" but declined to detail them.

Sources said these actions include alerting troops at posts and bases near Washington to be set to move, if necessary, in as little as one hour.

Elements of the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., also will be alerted but won't be flown to the capital area unless needed, sources said.

Units of the District of Columbia National Guard, most of them military policemen, will undergo weekend drills at the D.C. Armory and will be available for any riot duty. Other guardsmen will stand by at home or within easy reach.

It was reported that some Army agents were observing the progress of the Poor Peoples' Campaign to determine the probable size of the crowds that will reach Washington, the mood of the marchers and those who are leading and influencing them.

Independents Certified

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Rev. J. F. Cooley, a Negro of St. Francis County, and Elton Rives III of West Memphis were certified by Secretary of State Kelly Bryant Thursday as independent candidates for the Arkansas House. Their names will appear on the November general election ballot.

Cooley is seeking Position 2 in District 27, Bryant certified 1,283 names on Cooley's petitions. He needed 1,149 to qualify.

Rives, seeking Position 2 in District 28, needed 1,150 signatures to qualify and 1,729 names were certified.

Thinks Man With Ten Children Has the Wrong Image to Be President

NEW YORK (AP) — An expert on natural resources and population trends declared today a man with 10 children has the wrong image to be president of the United States.

And that, said William Vogt, a former director of the Planned Parenthood Federation, is why he probably won't vote for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., if the Democrats nominate him to succeed Lyndon Johnson.

Vogt told a reporter that Kennedy's election "would set back the attempt to achieve a rational population policy for years."

Vogt, author of "Road to Survival" and other works on conservation of resources and world population control, asked: "How could the United States, presided over by a man with 10 or more children, get to the exploding populations of the world and urge a cut in their birth rate?"

"The last thing this country needs is more people. And the next to last, in my opinion, is a president of the United States who sets such a bad example." Vogt earlier stated his views in a letter printed in the Baltimore Evening Sun. A spokesman for the Planned

Coal Miners are Rescued Today

Associated Press Writer

HOMINY FALLS, W.Va. (AP) — Fifteen stiff and chilled coal miners rode a conveyor belt to freedom before dawn today after spending five terrifying days huddled in a flooded mine.

Left behind, deep in the mountain, were 10 of their fellows for whom all hope was lost long ago.

It was believed the 10 were swept to their death Monday noon when a break in the wall to an adjoining abandoned mine shot millions of gallons of water through the mine's wavy passageway.

The first miner came out of the mine entrance, into the glare of floodlights and the waiting arms of his wife and family at 5:20 a.m. He had spent a total of 118 hours and 20 minutes in the mine since he reported for work at 7 a.m. Monday.

The others followed in quick succession.

As each man stepped off the belt—unaided—a blanket was thrown around his shoulder and he was led to a padded bench.

They were black from hard-hat to boot and wet from the water they had to wade through on part of their journey. The lamps on their hats flickered through the gloom.

At first the 200 friends and relatives who had waited most of the night around the mine entrance were silent. Then there was a great wave of laughing and hugging.

It was difficult to make out any of the conversations as the scene turned to bedlam. Photographers' bulbs went off like harsh fireflies.

There also was sadness among relatives of the 10 missing men, who were reported to be in the mine in faint hope.

Mine officials had not released a list of those known to be alive and those presumed dead publicly, but it was likely that families had been notified. But they still crowded in hope. Elwood O'Dell was the first man out.

The men appeared dazed by the harsh floodlights and the questions being thrown at them by mine officials and relatives.

Only five minutes elapsed between the emergence of the first man and the last.

After a few minutes sitting down on foam covered benches outside the mine entrance, the men were led to ambulances. But all did not go.

One man who came out of the mine did not get into an ambulance, however. A woman had her arm around his waist and yelled "Here he is!"

4 Holidays Shifted to Monday

By JOHN W. BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a bill that would give the nation four long weekends a year by moving three national holidays to Monday and creating a new one—Columbus Day—also to be observed on Monday.

Rejecting the charge that it was uprooting the nation's historic past, the House voted 218 to 83 to scrap the existing dates for Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day and Veterans Day.

Under the bill, which faces a questionable future in the Senate, Washington's Birthday would fall on the third Monday in February, Memorial Day on the last Monday in May, Columbus Day on the second Monday in October and Veterans Day on the fourth Monday in October.

The changes would take effect Jan. 1, 1971, in order to give the states time to enact conforming legislation and calendar-makers time to adjust.

Only the District of Columbia and federal employees would be affected by the bill, but the states are expected to go along if the new lineup becomes law.

Greater business efficiency and a lessening of absenteeism were the major reasons given by supporters for passage of the bill, which is strongly supported by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.
